

ALTERNATIVE FUNDS

Startup Funding

There are financing options available for businesses, regardless of how long you've been in business, your revenue, or credit score. However, your options will be limited if you've been in business for less than 6 months or have less than $15,000 in monthly gross revenue. Getting a loan for your startup through a bank is unheard of due to strict lending guidelines that require an established record of business and proof of income.

Applying with Alternative Funds provides you access to a dedicated Business Financing Advisor at no-cost to discuss how to get a startup business loan and review other potential business financing options.

Getting the capital you need to fund your business can be essential for most startups. You may be facing inventory, equipment, or other challenges that require an unexpected cost. Alternative Funds is here to provide all business owners with the best financing options available with flexible payment options, terms, and high approval amounts.

Obtaining business financing for your business may be difficult if you've been in business for less than 6 months. This immediately classifies your business to be considered a “startup”. With bank lending guidelines getting more stern, typical financing institutions may not be able to provide business financing for startups. However, you can qualify for business financing regardless of how long you’ve been in business or your gross revenue through an alternative financing company.

If you have been in business for less than 6 months, you are considered a startup. Most financing options require a minimum of 6 months in business and at least $15,000 gross revenue per month. However, startups can be exempt from these requirements. The only requirement would be a credit score of at least 650+.

You can qualify for a startup business loan with bad credit. As long as your credit score is 620 or above, we can provide you with business loan options. Additionally, there are no requirements for time in business or gross revenue. However, your options may be limited.

Most financing options require 6+ months in business, or $15,000 in gross revenue per month. If you meet these standards, be sure to let your Business Financing Advisor at Alternative Funds know. You may no-longer be considered a startup to some lenders, and get even better terms with flexible repayment options.

After your application is submitted, you will be paired with a dedicated Business Financing Advisor to discuss your cash-flow challenges and financing requirements. You can start getting financing options presented to you within hours, with flexible terms and high offers.

If you've been in business for less than 6 months, you are considered a startup. Banking institutions have even stricter requirements in terms of your time in business. That's why applying with an alternative financing company, like Alternative Funds, may be your best option to get the funding you need, as fast as possible.

The Small Business Administration has financing options for business startups. The SBA offers various startup loan options, such as a Micro Loan, 7(a) or 504/CDC Loans, or you may qualify for one of their investment programs. However, you may find challenges to get approved and the time to get funding may not be sufficient.
